About Beijing Jiaotong University

Introduction

Beijing Jiaotong University (BJTU), located at Xizhimenwai of Beijing, is a national key university of China, directly under the administration of the Ministry of Education. Her predecessor is Beijing Railway Management Training Institute and Beijing School of Posts and Telecommunications, set up by Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications of Qing Dynasty. In 1921, the school merged with two industrial technical schools in Shanghai and Tangshan form the National Jiaotong University, with three branch universities in Beijing, Shanghai and Tangshan respectively. BJTU was then called as Beijing Campus of National Jiaotong University.

After the founding of the People's Republic of China in October 1st 1949, BJTU was re-named as Northern Jiaotong University (NJTU) by the State Council. Chairman Mao Zedong appointed Academician Mao Yisheng, a nationally renowned expert in bridge engineering, as the first president of NJTU. In 1951, Chairman Mao Zedong autographed the name of the university. 1981, BJTU became one of the first key universities authorized by the central government to confer master's and doctoral degrees, and subsequently to confer titles of associate professors, professors and Ph.D. advisors. In July 1994, BJTU was selected as one of the first universities in the National 211 Project. In April 2000, Beijing Electrical Power College was merged into NJTU. Then the university was transferred from the Ministry of Railways to the Ministry of Education. In September 2003, the university restored the name Beijing Jiaotong University.

Arrival

BJTU offers free airport pick-up service on registration day stipulated on admission notice during the working hours.

Please send an email to lingu@bjtu.edu.cn to get an Arrival Information Form.

The airport pick-up fee is 500 RMB if students arrive on the other working days.

International students who cannot register at Beijing Jiaotong University on time must inform the host university coordinator to get permission.

When you arrive at Beijing International Airport, we advise you to reach campus by subway or taxi.

Option One: Subway. Please take airport express and transfer to Subway Line Two at Dongzhimen Station (25 RMB), and get off at Xizhimen Station (4 RMB). If you have lots of luggage, you can take a taxi at Xizhimen Station to the South Gate of Beijing Jiaotong University directly (about 13 RMB).

Option Two: Taxi. Please take a taxi to the South Gate of Beijing Jiaotong University, it will cost about 120-140 RMB, and you can ask for a receipt from the driver.

Center for International Education (CIE) is the office in charge of international student affairs including application and admission, registration, accommodation on campus allocation etc. When you first come to BJTU, you need to visit CIE for registration. The CIE office is located in Level 1 Block C at BJTU Main Campus.

Below is the South Gate of BJTU Main Campus:

Below is the South Gate of BJTU East Campus:

You will be assigned with a Student Buddy from School of Economics and Management the day you arrive. The Student Buddy will meet and greet at the South Gate and will help you with registration at Center for International Education and will help you get familiarized with the campus. Throughout the semester you may ask for advice from your Student Buddy if you have any questions regarding living on campus or touring around the city, your Student Buddy will be happy to help.

Opening account

In China to open an account, you must carry passports, temporary residence permits, valid ID card to fill out the account application on the bank counter, and then you can apply for bank cards after the application is successful.

The most convenient bank for international exchange students to get an account with is ICBC and BOC. You can do it at ICBC Jiadadonglu Branch. If you are applying for a CSC scholarship, you need to get a Bank of China account. You need to contact Center for International Education regarding opening Bank of China account.

Cash withdrawal

You can withdraw cash by going to a counter of a bank in which you have a bank account, or by using a cash dispenser (ATM) if you have a withdrawal card. ATMs are everywhere on campus and open 24 / 7.

International foreign banker's cards are accepted by many ATMs, but they may charge transaction fee for every withdrawal. Ask for information to your bank about the cost of such transactions (commission, exchange rate).

Catering

Eat on campus

The canteens including a Muslim canteen in the newly built Student Recreation Center (学生活动中心) can accommodate 3,000 people simultaneously. Other canteens are located throughout the campus (No.1, No.2 No.3 and No.4 canteens). The canteens cater over 100 kinds of dishes every day. The average price for each meal in the canteen is about 10-15 RMB.

To eat on campus, you use your student ID card. You can recharge with cash at service kiosks everyday during lunch or dinner time. If you have Bank of China account you may recharge it directly at Kiosk at Level 1 Student Recreation Center (学生活动中心).

Canteens open time:

Breakfast 7:00am-9:00am

Lunch 11:00am-2:00pm

Dinner 5:00pm-8:00pm

Tips:

1. You can go to the dining hall a bit early or late if you don't want to feel too crowded. Of course, the varieties of food and dishes will not be so abundant than that the peak hour.

2. After having meals, please bring the dinner set to the place of collection which is generally at the entrance/exit of the dining hall.

Eat off campus

There are so many different restaurants with special local flavor of Chinese cuisines around BJTU. You can always find your favorite restaurant in Beijing.

Here is a list of some Chinese restaurants nearby:

Lots of restaurant have online order platform on Wechat (微信) as well. McDonald's, KFC, Domino's, Burger King, and Pizza Hut all have food delivery that can be ordered on Wechat.

Transportation

Public Transportation in Beijing

We advise international student to choose public transportation using Beijing municipal administration and communications card (市政公交一卡通, Shizheng Gongjiao Yikatong) when travelling in Beijing. You can buy and recharge the card on every subway station. The card can be used on both subway and bus. Public transportations such as Subway (BJTU is near Xizhimen Station), bus are not only convenient and efficient, but also economical and environmental.

Xizhimen subway station is an important transfer station which is not far from the university. You can transfer to Line 2, Line 13 and Line 4. Subway Line 2 connects Airport Express.

Stops of No. 16, 26, 305 and Yuntong 105 buses are near the south gate of BJTU. (Beijing Jiaotong Daxue bus station)

Stops of No.87, 651, Yuntong 103, 483 buses are near the east gate. (Jiao Da Donglu bus station)

Stops of No. 16, 26, Yuntong 103 buses are near the west gate. (Daliushu Nanzhan bus station)

You can also travel in Beijing by taxi which is very convenient. (the Beijing Subway map is showed on the next page.)

Travel in China

Regarding to travelling in China, railway is the NO.1 choice. There are 4 railway stations in Beijing (Beijing North Railway Station, Beijing South Railway Station, Beijing Railway Station, and Beijing West Railway Station). Meanwhile, travelling by air or by coach is also available. Beijing has two airports, the Capital International Airport and Nanyuan Airport. There are many railway and flight agent office around the university, and you can also buy tickets online. Purchasing ticket is always an easy thing.

Sightseeing in Beijing

Tiananmen and Tiananmen Square

Located in the center of Beijing, Tiananmen Square is the largest square in the world. It covers 44 hectares and can hold one million people. On October 1, 1949, the square was where the People's Republic of China was inaugurated.

The Forbidden City

The Forbidden City is China's most imposing architectural masterpiece. It represents many aspects of China's long history and is the largest museum of oriental art in the world. Located in the center of Beijing, the Forbidden City was built between 1406 and 1420. Twenty-four emperors of the Ming and Qing Dynasties once lived there. The entire palace covers an area of 72 hectares and boasts over 9,000 rooms and halls. Walking through the palace, visitors will have the feeling of passing through a historical corridor.

The Great Wall

China's Great Wall is the only man-made object visible from satellites and is one of man's most remarkable accomplishments. Construction of the Great Wall began in the 7th century B.C. This magnificent wonder starts at Shanhai Pass in the east and ends at Jiayu Pass in the west, stretching more than 6,000 kilometers.

The Ming Tombs

The Ming Tombs are the burial ground of thirteen Ming Dynasty emperors. Of these thirteen tombs, only two, Dingling and Changling, are open to public. Changling, the largest and the oldest of the thirteen, is Emperor Zhu Di's tomb. Dingling is the tomb of Emperor Zhu Yijun, and is the only one to be excavated so far.

The Temple of Heaven

Located in the southeast of Beijing, the Temple of Heaven was built in 1420. Ming and Qing emperors went there to worship heaven and pray for good harvests. Different from the Forbidden City with yellow tiles and red walls, this temple adopts blue as its major color, suggesting the sky.

The Summer Palace

Summer Palace, the largest garden and twenty kilometers northwest of Beijing, has a history of over eight hundred years. It was the place where the imperial families of the Qing Dynasty handled government affairs, spent summer time, celebrated birthdays and simply came for relaxation.

Beijing Capital Museum

If you are sightseeing in Beijing, do remember to include the Beijing Capital Museum in your itinerary. Among the major tourist attractions in Beijing, this museum is located on the Guozijian Street. Speaking of its history, the plan to set up the Beijing Capital Museum was drafted in 1953, but it was only in 1981 when the museum was formally declared open to the world. Speaking of the Beijing Confucius Temple in which the Beijing Capital Museum is housed, it was built in 1302 AD, which happened to be the sixth year of the Dade reign period of the Yuan dynasty. The second largest temple in China, the Beijing Confucius Temple occupies an area of 22000 square meters and has three wide courtyards. The Xianshi Gate of the temple now serves as the entrance to the Beijing Capital Museum. The Beijing Capital Museum in Beijing houses a fine collection of cultural relics that can be classified into 21 broad categories. They include glassware, stone inscriptions, paintings, bronze/silver/bronze wares and a variety of silk fabrics. However, the most ubiquitous of all items are good quality porcelain wares designed in the most fascinating manner. Entry tickets to the Beijing Capital Museum cost RMB 10 yuan each and the museum remains open from 8:30am to 16:30pm every day except Monday.

798 Art Zone

798 Art Zone or Dashanzi Art District, is a part of Dashanzi in the Chaoyang District of Beijing that houses a thriving artist community, among 50-year old decommissioned military factory buildings of unique architectural style. It is often compared with New York's Greenwich Village or SoHo. The area is often called the 798 Art District or Factory 798 although technically, Factory #798 is only one of several structures within a complex formerly known as Joint Factory 718. The buildings are located inside alleys No. 2 and 4 on Jiuxianqiao Road, south of the Dashanzi flyover.

National Centre for the Performing Art

National Centre for the Performing Arts is a dynamic new icon to the arts in the heart of old Beijing. The Centre's ultra-modern architecture is in sharp contrast to its neighbours, the Great Hall of the People, Tiananmen Square and the ancient Forbidden City. The National Centre for the Performing Arts is far more than a spectacular and futuristic building. It is China's new face on the performing arts. It is a stage for the world's greatest artists. It will showcase China's burgeoning international stars and celebrate the creativity of its many ethnic cultures. Its location at No. 2 West Chang'an Avenue and its masterful, creative design are testament to the prestige China has placed on the performing arts. The Centre hosted its first official concert on December 22, 2007, signaling a coming of age for performance art in China. Three main performance venues, along with a host of resource facilities, are cunningly housed under the Centre's ellipsoid shell.

Wangfujing

The 700-year-old Wangfujing Street is not the most interesting street in Beijing but it is probably the most famous and busiest. Because of its easy access to the major roads, high land prices, high density of retail and service business and the high degree of population flow, Wangfujing is now considered the city's central business district. What attracts, is the Xinhua Bookstore and the Beijing Foreign Languages Bookstore, nice places to spend all day, reading, reading and reading. As to eating in Wangfujing, the "Goubuli" restaurant sells some of the best steamed buns in town. Another thing about

Wangfujing is that you can freely walk around because much of the road is off-limits to cars and other motor vehicles. Wangfujing is located in the Dongcheng District of Beijing. The street has an extension of 1,150 meters, from Wangfujing Nankou to Dengshi Xikou. Wangfujing is served by Line 1 of the Beijing subway (at the southern end of the street). Line 1 is an important subway line for you because is the only one that runs through the centre of Beijing (it runs from Pingguoyuan (west) to Sihui East (East), through beneath the extended Chang'an Avenue and the commercial areas of Xidan, Wangfujing and Dongdan. It also has two stations in both sides of Tiananmen.

Bird Nest

Located at the southern part of the Olympic Green in Beijing, the National Stadium is the main stadium of the 29th Olympiad in 2008. Occupying an area of 21 hectares, it has a floor space of 258,000 square meters. Its seating capacity amounts to 91,000, including 11,000 temporary seats.

The venue hosted the opening and closing ceremonies of the Beijing Olympic Games and Paralympic Games, the track and field competitions, and the football finals. After the Olympics, the stadium became a large-scale sports and entertainment facility for the residents of Beijing -- an architectural landmark and Olympic legacy.

Water Cube

The National Aquatics Center is the only landmark Olympic stadium sponsored by countrymen and overseas Chinese in Hong Kong, Macao and Taiwan under the direction of the Beijing Municipal Government. With the theme of "New Beijing, New Olympics" and the concept of a "people's Olympics," it expresses the Chinese people's good wishes for the 2008 Beijing Olympics and demonstrates the spirit of national unity in contributing to the Games. The National Aquatics Center is located in the south-central part of the Beijing Olympic Park near the middle axis of the city, with the National Stadium on the opposite side of the axis. The Games-time facility is nearly to 80,000 square meters in area, containing 17,000 standard seats, including 6,000 permanent seats and 11,000 temporary seats. After the Games, the National Aquatics Center has been transformed into a multi-function international center combining sports training, cultural entertainment and physical fitness.

South Luogu Alley (The famous hutong in Beijing)

South Luogu Alley, located between Beijing Gulou and Di'anmen, can be traced back to the Dadu period of Yuan Dynasty, and has a history of nearly 800 years so far. The streets and lanes, about 786 meters long, run through the north and the south, with perfectly preserved 16 symmetrical Hutong patterns of Yuan Dynasty on two sides. Starting from 2002, many bars appeared on the antique and quiet lane. In around 2003, bars and other small stores of South Luogu Lane increased to 70-80, and became another bar street following Sanlitun and Shichahai.

These bars and unique stores, simply decorated on the basis of the original quadrangles, basically keep the original pattern and feature of Beijing Hutong in spite of a variety of fashion factors. Tourists from around the world stop at the deep and serene South Luogu Lane; young people in the city also like to come here by themselves or chat with their friends here. The simple and modern South Luogu Lane feels the breath of the city in development, and is brimming with more charm as time goes by.

Shichahai Lake

Surrounded by Shichahai Lake and Beijing Hutong, Houhai bar street is a hot scenic spot receiving thousands of locals and worldwide visitors, such as courtiers, poets and painters. No matter it is walking beside Houhai lake, shopping in Yandaixiejie, riding in Hutong, or drinking in the stylistic bars and dining in a lake-side restaurant, the time in this street can be very exciting and entertaining.

There are many different bars and restaurants that lined the shores of the manmade lake.

Sanlitun Bar Street

Sanlitun Bar Street, a tree-lined neighborhood of foreign diplomatic compounds, is located in the Chaoyang District, northwest of the city center between the Workers Stadium (Gongrentiyuchang) and the North Third Ring Road.

There are also plenty of nightlife venues opening along the adjacent Gongrentiyuchang Street all the way east to Chaoyang Park. Most of these small, privately owned cafe/bars serve western cuisine by day and imported beer, wine, and spirits by night. They attract a large number of foreign residents, diplomats, students, as well as young, moneyed Beijingers. In summer, most of these cafe/bars offer outdoor seating in the sunlit hours. Sanlitun Bar Street is the liveliest and most compact nightlife district in Beijing. Most of the bars and cafes are situated chockablock on the east side of Sanlitun Road running north from the intersection at Gongrentiyuchang North Road (west of the East Third Ring Road). Here a green sign announces (in English) that you are at the gateway to Sanlitun Bar Street. The sidewalk is strung with bright pennants and table umbrellas. The cafes, bars, and clubs line the street and alleyways for the next 4 blocks, but the farther north you walk, the more likely it is that the bars will be interspersed with small boutiques, art galleries and rattan furniture shops. Eventually you reach the north end of Sanlitun Road, where the foreign embassies and consulates are located, but there are cafes and bars here, too. Along the southern shore of the Liangma River, one block west off Sanlitun Road, is Schillers II, a bar and restaurant long popular with foreigners in Beijing and open daily from 5pm to 1am. If you follow the river east, you'll come to the Third Ring Road area, the location of Beijing's own Hard Rock Cafe.
